

Tiếng anh thương mại 1/ Luyện tập trắc nghiệm Unit 1

Thoát

Theo dõi trả lời

Câu 1:

+1 điểm

Could I ..... you a call next week to discuss this in more detail?

- ☐ A. give
- ☐ B. help
- ☐ C. make
- ☒ D. let

 Gắn cờ

Câu 2:

+1 điểm

A: Should I list all my hobbies on my CV?*B: You don't ..... to list all of them. Maybe one or two.

- ☐ A. can
- ☐ B. must
- ☐ C. should

☐ D. have

 Gắn cờ

Câu 3:

+1 điểm

She is good at ..... realistic goals for her team, which help guide them in doing their important tasks.

☐ A. making

☐ B. setting

☐ C. getting

☐ D. doing

 Gắn cờ

Câu 4:

+1 điểm

A: My boss always shouts at me.

B: Your boss .....shout at you. It's wrong.

☐ A. didn't

☐ B. hadn't

☐ C. shouldn't

☐ D. won't

 Gắn cờ

Câu 5:

+1 điểm

A: I need some work experience.

B: You .....try and get a work placement.

☐ A. should

☐ B. must

☐ C. want

☐ D. might

 Gắn cờ

Câu 6:

+1 điểm

A: I've no idea what to do with these files.

B: You ..... give them to Jane. She might know what to do with them.

☐ A. have

☐ B. would

☐ C. must

☐ D. could

 Gắn cờ

Câu 7:

+1 điểm

A: I don't really like my job.

B: ..... don't you look for another job?

☐ A. Why

☐ B. When

☐ C. How

☐ D. What

 Gắn cờ

Câu 8:

+1 điểm

A: I can't find any good jobs.

B: How .....sending your CV to the new company in town? I hear they're looking for staff.

☐ A. about

☐ B. over

☐ C. before

☐ D. after

 Gắn cờ

Câu 9:

+1 điểm

A: I can't understand this document.

B: You ..... to ask your colleague to explain it.

☐ A. could

☐ B. would

☐ C. ought

☐ D. must

 Gắn cờ

Câu 10:

+1 điểm

A: I need to tell my manager about the problem.

B: Why .....you speak to her tomorrow?

☐ A. didn't

☐ B. aren't

☐ C. don't

☐ D. do

Gắn cờ

Câu 11:

+1 điểm

The newly appointed manager gives her team quite a lot of ..... so they are able to work on their own.

☐ A. reliance

☐ B. goals

☐ C. passion

☐ D. independence

Gắn cờ

Câu 12:

+1 điểm

With all her great work achievements since the beginning, she is ..... in her ability to reach a senior position

☐ A. ambitious

☐ B. motivated

- ☐ C. confident
- ☐ D. encouraged

Câu 13:

+1 điểm

He is said to be an excellent team ..... because he works really well with other team members.

- ☐ A. follower
- ☐ B. player
- ☐ C. colleague
- ☐ D. partner

Câu 14:

+1 điểm

She has a lot of ..... as she is always honest, which her team likes.

- ☐ A. integrity
- ☐ B. productivity

- ☐ C. flexibility
- ☐ D. adaptability

Câu 15:

+1 điểm

You can't help but admire her ..... to succeed in everything she does.

- ☐ A. determination
- ☐ B. attitude
- ☐ C. communication
- ☐ D. production

Câu 16:

+1 điểm

A: I'm not sure where to take our visitors to lunch.

B: You ..... to try that new restaurant in town.

- ☐ A. ought
- ☐ B. might

- ☐ C. must
- ☐ D. should

Câu 17:

+1 điểm

Could you put me in ..... with the sales representative?

- ☐ A. touch
- ☐ B. list
- ☐ C. phone
- ☐ D. link

Câu 18:

+1 điểm

Mary has a great ..... attitude, she is always ready to take on new tasks without complaining.

- ☐ A. will
- ☐ B. must

☐ C. might

☐ D. can-do

 Gắn cờ

Câu 19:

+1 điểm

Students are frequently encouraged to use ..... thinking instead of following the old mindset.

☐ A. reasonable

☐ B. serious

☐ C. critical

☐ D. flexible

 Gắn cờ

Câu 20:

+1 điểm

Thank you for your ..... today. We'll let you know our decision next week.

☐ A. day

☐ B. time

☐ C. morning

☐ D. year

 Gắn cờ

Câu 21:

+1 điểm

It's been very nice talking to you, I really ..... your feedback.

☐ A. appreciate

☐ B. compensate

☐ C. generate

☐ D. validate

 Gắn cờ

Câu 22:

+1 điểm

She loves her job and is very ..... about it.

☐ A. resourceful

☐ B. efficient

☐ C. ambitious

☐ D. passionate

 Gắn cờ

Câu 23:

+1 điểm

She usually has a lot of creative ideas for fulfilling the assigned tasks and she is able to .....outside the box

☐ A. think

☐ B. generate

☐ C. communicate

☐ D. plan

 Gắn cờ

Câu 24:

+1 điểm

A: I don't know how to tell him that I broke the printer.

B: Why not .....telling the truth? That's always best.

☐ A. will

☐ B. do

☐ C. have

☐ D. try

 Gắn cờ

Câu 25:

+1 điểm

Peter is our new boss. He's in ..... of this department.

☐ A. form

☐ B. charge

☐ C. position

☐ D. take

 Gắn cờ

Câu 26:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Which picture is the woman asking about?

☐ A. a picture of mountains

☐ B. a picture of flowers

- ☐ C. a picture of an art magazine
- ☐ D. a picture of an artist

Gắn cờ

Câu 27:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Which of Miranda's things will Lucy be able to use?

- ☐ A. the cupboard
- ☐ B. the shoes
- ☐ C. the box of balls
- ☐ D. the racket

Gắn cờ

Câu 28:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What did the woman buy yesterday?

yle="text-align:justify;">What did the woman buy yesterday?

- ☐ A. the curtains
- ☐ B. the rug
- ☐ C. the sofa
- ☐ D. the blanket

Câu 29:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What will the weather be like tomorrow lunchtime?

- ☐ A. cloudy
- ☐ B. windy
- ☐ C. rainy
- ☐ D. foggy

Câu 30:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What time did the girl arrive?

- ☐ A. at 6.05
- ☐ B. at 6.45
- ☐ C. at 5.10
- ☐ D. at 7.00

Gắn cờ

Câu 31:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Where is the photograph now?

- ☐ A. next to the phone
- ☐ B. above the cupboard
- ☐ C. on the floor
- ☐ D. next to the window

Gắn cờ

Câu 32:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

When she was at school, Clara wanted to become....

- ☐ A. a teacher
- ☐ B. a historian
- ☐ C. a lawyer
- ☐ D. an actress

Gắn cờ

Câu 33:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What does Sarah's dad do?

- ☐ A. a nurse
- ☐ B. a driver
- ☐ C. a doctor
- ☐ D. a cook

Câu 34:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What can't the woman find?

- ☐ A. the shelves
- ☐ B. the paint brush
- ☐ C. pair of scissors
- ☐ D. the hammer

Câu 35:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Jack was surprised by the other photos in the competition because....

- ☐ A. the quality was so high.
- ☐ B. the subjects were so unusual.

- ☐ C. their owners were so famous.
- ☐ D. the styles were so similar.

Gắn cờ

Câu 36:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

When Jack first looked at his winning photo, how did he feel?

- ☐ A. satisfied by its colours
- ☐ B. worried about the background
- ☐ C. proud of how good it was
- ☐ D. unsure how clear the detail was

Gắn cờ

Câu 37:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Why did Jack go into his yard to take his winning photo?

- ☐ A. He was looking for shots of flowers.
- ☐ B. He was trying out some new equipment.
- ☐ C. He wanted to be out in the sunshine.
- ☐ D. He wanted to take photos of insects.

Gắn cờ

Câu 38:

+1 điểm*Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

In the shop, Linda helped with....

- ☐ A. making sandwiches
- ☐ B. displaying cakes
- ☐ C. baking bread
- ☐ D. decorating the cakes

Gắn cờ

Câu 39:

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

+1 điểm

0:00 / 14:56

Why did Jack take photographs of street signs?

- ☐ A. His mother suggested it
- ☐ B. He had some new kit for his camera.
- ☐ C. He liked their different shapes.
- ☐ D. The colours were exciting.

Gắn cờ

Câu 40:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What did Linda enjoy about working in the shop?

- ☐ A. eating the cakes
- ☐ B. the smell of baking
- ☐ C. the easy-going customers
- ☐ D. the clean workplace

Câu 41:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Why did Clara not apply for the museum job sooner?

- ☐ A. Her mother advised her to wait.
- ☐ B. It seemed a very difficult job.
- ☐ C. She didn't want to take responsibility.
- ☐ D. She thought it might be boring.

Câu 42:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Linda worked in a cake shop because....

- ☐ A. she needed to buy things for college.
- ☐ B. she wanted to give her parents some money.

- ☐ C. she liked making friends with new people.
- ☐ D. her parents didn't give her enough money.

Câu 43:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Linda liked her first boss because he....

- ☐ A. sent her on a training course
- ☐ B. was kind to her
- ☐ C. paid her well
- ☐ D. was her relative

Câu 44:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

Clara was told to improve her knowledge of....

- ☐ A. French studies
- ☐ B. computers
- ☐ C. mathematics
- ☐ D. languages

Câu 45:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions:

0:00 / 14:56

What surprised Clara on her first day at work?

- ☐ A. She had to carry some items.
- ☐ B. She had to meet lots of people
- ☐ C. She had to introduce herself first.
- ☐ D. She was asked to give a speech.

Câu 46:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44 billion, $67 billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

By 2030, how many men in China may die from smoking every year?

- ☐ A. one million
- ☐ B. four million
- ☐ C. three million
- ☐ D. two million

Câu 47:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

What does the word "those men" in paragraph 2 refer to?

- ☐ A. Men who smoke in public
- ☐ B. Men who give up smoking
- ☐ C. Men who smoke above the age of 20
- ☐ D. Men who smoke under the age of 20

Gắn cờ

Câu 48:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44 billion, $67 billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

How many Chinese men start to smoke before the age of 20?

☐ A. two-thirds

☐ B. half

☐ C. one-third

☐ D. all of them

Gắn cờ

Câu 49:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

What is the writer's purpose?

- ☐ A. To argue over smoking policy in China
- ☐ B. To support smoking in China
- ☐ C. To report the result of a research paper
- ☐ D. To warn and prevent smoking in China

 Gắn cờ

Câu 50:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

Which of the following words does the word "hamper" have closest meaning to?

- ☐ A. assist
- ☐ B. restrict
- ☐ C. basket

☐ D. prohibit

 Gắn cờ

Câu 51:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

What does the writer imply about Chinese government?

- ☐ A. They do not care about smoking.
- ☐ B. They do not want to stop people from smoking.
- ☐ C. They have tried to close tobacco companies.
- ☐ D. They have tried to stop people from smoking in public but with little success.

Gắn cờ

Câu 52:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44 billion, $67 billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

In many areas of China, when do men usually smoke?

- ☐ A. Before a meal
- ☐ B. Before they go to sleep
- ☐ C. When they get up
- ☐ D. After a meal

Câu 53:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

What is Richard Peto's attitude toward smoking in China?

- ☐ A. He thinks that people possibly stop smoking if they see reasons.
- ☐ B. He is sure about the rise of future deaths in China.
- ☐ C. He doesn't believe that people will give up smoking
- ☐ D. He is disappointed with the Chinese government.

Gắn cờ

Câu 54:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44 billion, $67 billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

According to WHO, only.....of Chinese adults can list bad effects of smoking

☐ A. one-third

- ☐ B. a half
- ☐ C. one-fifth
- ☐ D. one-fourth

Câu 55:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A new study, conducted by scientists from Oxford University, the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and the Chinese Center for Disease Control, has warned that a third of all men currently under the age of 20 in China will eventually die prematurely if they do not give up smoking.

The research, published in The Lancet medical journal, says two-thirds of men in China now start to smoke before 20. Around half of those men will die from the habit, it concludes.

In 2010, around one million people in China died from tobacco usage. But researchers say that if current trends continue, that will double to two million people - mostly men - dying every year by 2030, making it a "growing epidemic of premature death".

But co-author Richard Peto said there was hope - if people can be persuaded to quit. "The key to avoid this huge wave of deaths is cessation, and if you are a young man, don't start," he said.

In many parts of China, meals often fit a comfortable pattern. After putting down their chopsticks, men commonly push their chairs back from the table and light cigarettes. No wonder China has struggled to impose a smoking ban in public places. Here, relationships are often built amid clouds of smoke.

Expensive brands of cigarettes, often decorated with gold detailing on the cartons, are given as gifts. And ordinary brands are affordable to all but the very poor, costing just 2.5 yuan ($0.4; £0.25) a pack.

In a country where smoking is so ingrained in daily life, few understand the harmful effects of tobacco use. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), only 25% of Chinese adults can list the specific health hazards of smoking, from lung cancer to heart disease.

Perhaps it should come as no surprise, then, that only 10% of Chinese smokers quit by choice. Instead, most are forced to give up their cigarettes because they're too sick to continue.

While smoking rates have fallen in developed countries - to less than one in five in the US - they have risen in China, as cigarettes have become more available and consumers richer.

Authorities have shown concern over the rise, with Beijing even introducing a public smoking ban. But efforts have been hampered by the habit's popularity, and its usefulness as a source of tax - the government collects about 428 billion yuan (£44billion, $67billion) in tobacco taxes each year.

Globally, tobacco kills up to half of its users, according to the World Health Organization.

"Beijing" refers to .....

- ☐ A. The city of Beijing
- ☐ B. The Chinese government
- ☐ C. China
- ☐ D. People who live in Beijing

 Gắn cờ

1

Nộp bài