

Tiếng anh thương mại 1/ Luyện tập trắc nghiệm Unit 4

Thoát

Theo dõi trả lời

Câu 1:

+1 điểm

Can weto item two on the agenda, updating our website?

- ☐ A. move
- ☐ B. leave
- ☐ C. come
- ☐ D. go

Gắn cờ

Câu 2:

+1 điểm

A lot of money (need) to complete the project.

- ☐ A. are needed
- ☐ B. needed
- ☐ C. is needed
- ☐ D. is need

 Gắn cờ

Câu 3:

+1 điểm

I'm afraid I disagree.....you on this project.

- ☐ A. on
- ☐ B. with
- ☐ C. in
- ☐ D. for

 Gắn cờ

Câu 4:

+1 điểm

I think it is amoment to start talking about the prices for next year.

- ☐ A. good
- ☐ B. badly
- ☐ C. well
- ☐ D. worse

 Gắn cờ

Câu 5:

+1 điểm

Large companies agree that marketing should be adapted to local markets.

- ☐ A. campaigns
- ☐ B. features
- ☐ C. luxury
- ☐ D. consumers

 Gắn cờ

Câu 6:

+1 điểm

One of our mainmarkets for next year is China.

- ☐ A. global
- ☐ B. target
- ☐ C. local
- ☐ D. product

Câu 7:

+1 điểm

As a result of the fast the company is enjoying, we are looking for new markets.

- ☐ A. growth
- ☐ B. grew
- ☐ C. growing
- ☐ D. grown

Câu 8:

+1 điểm

The project (finish) last week.

- ☐ A. was finished
- ☐ B. were finished
- ☐ C. has finished
- ☐ D. finished

 Gắn cờ

Câu 9:

+1 điểm

Lay's is the name used by the company all over the world.

- ☐ A. target
- ☐ B. strategy
- ☐ C. brand
- ☐ D. logo

 Gắn cờ

Câu 10:

+1 điểm

A big profit (make) last year.

- ☐ A. made
- ☐ B. were made
- ☐ C. was made
- ☐ D. has been made

Câu 11:

+1 điểm

The companies (merge) with another Priceline subsidiary called Active Hotels later the same year.

- ☐ A. was merged
- ☐ B. have been merged
- ☐ C. were merged
- ☐ D. had been merged

Câu 12:

+1 điểm

BMW has used Chinese social media to make the brand to the urban youth.

- ☐ A. customizable
- ☐ B. adaptable
- ☐ C. appealing
- ☐ D. productive

Câu 13:

+1 điểm

In fact, there are many options for the of a Mini that they say there are 10 million different combinations.

- ☐ A. customisation
- ☐ B. specialist
- ☐ C. preference
- ☐ D. standardisation

Câu 14:

+1 điểm

The growth of Bookings.nl (notice) by an American company now called Booking Holdings Inc in 2006 for just over $130 million.

- ☐ A. has bought
- ☐ B. was bought
- ☐ C. is bought
- ☐ D. bought

Câu 15:

+1 điểm

That's so risky. ask three companies to make proposals?

- ☐ A. We should
- ☐ B. Good idea
- ☐ C. How about if
- ☐ D. Why don't we

Câu 16:

+1 điểm

The original company.....(found) in Amsterdam in 1996.

- ☐ A. founded
- ☐ B. found
- ☐ C. was founded
- ☐ D. is founded

Câu 17:

+1 điểm

We need to invest in a smart, new website.

- ☐ A. indefinitely
- ☐ B. definite
- ☐ C. definitely
- ☐ D. certain

Câu 18:

+1 điểm

Our production process is very.....so we will be able to meet the needs of individual markets quite easily.

- ☐ A. adaptable
- ☐ B. profitable
- ☐ C. preferable
- ☐ D. consumable

Câu 19:

+1 điểm

I with Tanya. We should move to the next item as we are now behind the schedule.

- ☐ A. think
- ☐ B. tell
- ☐ C. agree
- ☐ D. say

Câu 20:

+1 điểm

The webpages(translate) into over 40 different languages.

- ☐ A. are translated
- ☐ B. translated
- ☐ C. translate
- ☐ D. is translated

Câu 21:

+1 điểm

Starbucks decided to only use itsbecause many people in China are not familiar with the Latin alphabet.

- ☐ A. target
- ☐ B. logo
- ☐ C. strategy
- ☐ D. production

Câu 22:

+1 điểm

The company is using innovative advertising strategies to attract more potential.....

- ☐ A. products.
- ☐ B. professionals.
- ☐ C. customers.
- ☐ D. specialists.

Câu 23:

+1 điểm

Our new website (launch) last month and it has been very successful.

- ☐ A. has launched
- ☐ B. was launched
- ☐ C. launched
- ☐ D. is launched

Câu 24:

+1 điểm

Many brands ofgoods have outlets at large international airports targeting the wealthy traveler.

- ☐ A. local
- ☐ B. customized
- ☐ C. luxury
- ☐ D. normal

 Gắn cờ

Câu 25:

+1 điểm

That's Can you send me a draft next week?

- ☐ A. not a good idea
- ☐ B. not good
- ☐ C. good idea
- ☐ D. a good idea

 Gắn cờ

Câu 26:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 14:52

What will the boy do first?

- ☐ A. have dinner with his mother
- ☐ B. go to the library
- ☐ C. go to the tennis club
- ☐ D. help his friend with his bike

 Gắn cờ

Câu 27:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 14:52

What does the man want to buy?

- ☐ A. a T-shirt
- ☐ B. a sweater
- ☐ C. a shirt
- ☐ D. a jacket

 Gắn cờ

Câu 28:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 14:52

How much is the girl's bus ticket?

- ☐ A. £1
- ☐ B. £2
- ☐ C. £1.35
- ☐ D. £1.75

Gắn cờ

Câu 29:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 14:52

Where is the man's watch?

- ☐ A. on the bath
- ☐ B. on his bed
- ☐ C. in the kitchen

☐ D. in the sink

Câu 30:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 14:52

How will Jill go to the football match?

☐ A. by car

☐ B. on foot

☐ C. by bus

☐ D. by bike

Câu 31:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

How is Natasha going to work today?

- ☐ A. by taxi
- ☐ B. by bus
- ☐ C. driving
- ☐ D. running

Câu 32:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

When is the girl's swimming lesson next week?

- ☐ A. after 11 o'clock
- ☐ B. after 8 o'clock
- ☐ C. after 9 o'clock
- ☐ D. after 10 o'clock

Câu 33:

Listen to the recording and answer the questions+1 điểm

0:00 / 0:00

Where do they decide to go?

- ☐ A. to the photograph exhibition
- ☐ B. to the clothes exhibition
- ☐ C. to the book exhibition
- ☐ D. to the sculpture exhibition

Gắn cờ

Câu 34:

+1 điểmListen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What job does the boy want to do?

- ☐ A. teacher
- ☐ B. journalist
- ☐ C. scientist
- ☐ D. doctor

Câu 35:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

Why isn't Louise interested in a musical show?

- ☐ A. She doesn't like to have audience.
- ☐ B. She likes singing only.
- ☐ C. She finds dancing difficult
- ☐ D. She always feels nervous.

Câu 36:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What does John imply about his performance at Regent Theatre?

- ☐ A. It was a success.
- ☐ B. It was very hard for him.

- ☐ C. He made a lot of mistakes.
- ☐ D. He was not satisfied with it.

Câu 37:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

John thinks that Mrs. Thompson is....

- ☐ A. very easy-going
- ☐ B. very serious
- ☐ C. too difficult to work with
- ☐ D. very good

Câu 38:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What does Charlotte plan to do if she takes the Chinese course?

- ☐ A. travel round China when she has free time.
- ☐ B. go to China to learn the language.
- ☐ C. open a class to teach Chinese for 20 other students.
- ☐ D. discuss with her parents to find the best ways to learn.

Gắn cờ

Câu 39:

+1 điểmListen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What are John and Louise both doing here?

- ☐ A. taking part in a musical show
- ☐ B. attending a singing lesson
- ☐ C. learning to dance
- ☐ D. listening to a concert

Gắn cờ

Câu 40:

Listen to the recording and answer the questions+1 điểm

0:00 / 0:00

Next year Charlotte going to study....

- ☐ A. German
- ☐ B. Russian
- ☐ C. French
- ☐ D. Spanish

Gắn cờ

Câu 41:

+1 điểmListen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

Charlotte's father thinks that Chinese....

- ☐ A. is important for everybody
- ☐ B. is not an interesting language
- ☐ C. is good for his business
- ☐ D. is difficult to learn

Câu 42:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What health problem did Colin have when running to work?

- ☐ A. He got back pain.
- ☐ B. He was exhauste
- ☐ C. He got coughs
- ☐ D. He couldn't breathe.

Câu 43:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

How does Natasha feel when running?

- ☐ A. nervous
- ☐ B. embarrassed

☐ C. stressful

☐ D. free

Câu 44:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

What is true about the race next month?

☐ A. The distance is 30 kilometers.

☐ B. It opens to everyone.

☐ C. Women cannot atten

☐ D. The participants must be trained.

Câu 45:

+1 điểm

Listen to the recording and answer the questions

0:00 / 0:00

Why does Charlotte choose to learn this language?

- ☐ A. She'll need it for her future career.
- ☐ B. She thinks it is easy.
- ☐ C. Her friends choose it, too.
- ☐ D. She thinks it is interesting.

Câu 46:

+1 điểm

In paragraph 1, what time of the day does the author describe?

- ☐ A. In the evening
- ☐ B. Mid-day
- ☐ C. Early in the morning
- ☐ D. Late at night

Câu 47:

+1 điểm

According to the passage, what are under Paris?

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Misérables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

According to the passage, what are under Paris?

- ☐ A. Sewers and old subways
- ☐ B. Night clubs and galleries

- ☐ C. Canals, catacombs, and wine cellars
- ☐ D. Tunnels

Gắn cờ

Câu 48:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Misérables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

Why were the tunnels built during the 19th century?

- ☐ A. Because they needed stones
- ☐ B. Because they wanted to make clubs and galleries
- ☐ C. Because they used them in war
- ☐ D. Because farmers wanted to grow mushrooms

Câu 49:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Miserables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

What does the word "Parisians" in paragraph 2 refer to?

- ☐ A. Builders working in Paris
- ☐ B. French people
- ☐ C. People living in Paris
- ☐ D. Rich people in Paris

 Gắn cờ

Câu 50:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Misérables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

Why is Dominique and Yopie's room difficult to find?

- ☐ A. It takes two hours to walk there.
- ☐ B. There are many other places like it
- ☐ C. It is not on the map.

☐ D. They never show people where it is

 Gắn cờ

Câu 51:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Miserables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

Why does the writer say it's dangerous in the tunnels?

- ☐ A. The police may arrest you.
- ☐ B. The tunnels might fall down on you.
- ☐ C. You might get lost.
- ☐ D. There are criminals down there.

Gắn cờ

Câu 52:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Miserables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

Are tourist allowed to go underground?

- ☐ A. No, never.
- ☐ B. Yes, they can visit part of the tunnels.
- ☐ C. Yes, but it is illegal.
- ☐ D. Yes, they can go everywhere.

Gắn cờ

Câu 53:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Miserables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

According to the passage, when did young people start to use the tunnels?

☐ A. Since the 19th century

☐ B. Since the 1970s

- ☐ C. Since the World War II
- ☐ D. Since the French Resistance

Câu 54:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Misérables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

Why does the author mention Victor Hugo?

- ☐ A. To give examples of best French novels
- ☐ B. To prove that the tunnels are under Paris
- ☐ C. To prove that he wrote about the tunnels
- ☐ D. To prove that the tunnels often appear in books

Gắn cờ

Câu 55:

+1 điểm

Read the article and choose the correct answer A, B, C or D.

A tour under Paris

The great avenues are quiet, the shops are closed. There's the smell of fresh bread from a bakery somewhere. It would be hard to say which time of the day in Paris I prefer but this is probably it. Soon the streets will be full of people and traffic. As with most other cities, you see the real Paris when the city wakes up.

There is, however, another part of Paris which is silent and free from people 24 hours a day. Under the city are hundreds of kilometres of tunnels. There are sewers and old subways but there are also spaces of all kinds: canals and catacombs, wine cellars which have been made into nightclubs and galleries. During the 19th century, the Parisians needed more stone for buildings above the ground so they dug tunnels beneath the city. After that, many farmers grew mushrooms in them. During World War II, the French Resistance fighters also used them. Since the 1970s, many groups of young people spend days and nights below the city in these tunnels. It's a place for parties, theatre performances, art galleries – anything goes here!

Everywhere you go under Paris, there is history and legend. Historians and novelists often refer to them in their books. For example, Victor Hugo mentions the tunnels in his famous novel Les Miserables and in the story and musical The Phantom of the Opera there is a pond beneath the old opera house. Most people think this is myth but in fact there is an underground pond here with fish. A 'normal' tourist can visit parts of Paris beneath the ground. For example, there are the catacombs beneath the Montparnasse district. Here you can see the bones and skeletons of about six millions Parisians. The bodies came from cemeteries above the ground two centuries ago when the city needed more space.

However, it's illegal to enter other parts of the tunnels and police often search the area. It's also very dangerous because some of the tunnels might collapse. Nevertheless, there are people who will take you to visit them. I have found two 'unofficial' tour guides – Dominique and Yopie (not their real names). They take me through many tunnels and after a couple of hours we arrive at a room which isn't on any map. Yopie and some of his friends built it. The room is comfortable and clean with a table and chairs and a bed. Yopie tells me there are many other places like this. 'Many people come down here to party, some people to paint ... We do what we want here.'

The word "myth" in paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to....

- ☐ A. legend.
- ☐ B. truth.
- ☐ C. example.
- ☐ D. fact.

 Gắn cờ

1

Nộp bài